apricot betty
a la Karo

10¢ a portion

- | | |
|--|--------------------------------|
| 1 (No. 2½) can apricot halves, drained | ½ teaspoon cinnamon |
| 5 tablespoons butter | Dash salt |
| 2½ cups small bread cubes | ½ teaspoon corn starch |
| ½ cup KARO (blue label) | 1 egg white |
| | 4 tablespoons KARO (red label) |

Set aside 12 apricot halves for topping. Melt 3 tablespoons butter, and mix with bread cubes. Toss with fork. Stir in KARO (blue label) and cinnamon. Arrange alternate layers of bread mixture and remaining apricots in greased individual baking dishes. Dot with remaining butter. Place 2 apricot halves on top of each, keeping cut side up. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 to 30 minutes. Add salt and corn starch to egg white, and whip until it begins to hold shape. Add KARO (red label), 1 tablespoon at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Drop half teaspoonfuls around edge of baking dish, and in center of each apricot half. Return to oven, and bake 10 minutes or until meringues are browned. Makes 6 servings. Serve hot!

TAMBAY GOLD

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

THE STORY: Mom Baumer sets up "Feederia" lunch wagon at the home of her son, Juddy. Juddy, a successful businessman, is a practical woman, you can see that, yourself, Mom.

MOM PLANS A PARTNERSHIP
CHAPTER X
ANGEL TODD blew in for breakfast one morning, looking like he'd slept in the hogsgov. "Mom," he said, kind of sad and thoughtful. "What?" "I've been thinking. Don't ask me what with; I'm serious." "What are you serious about, Big Boy?" "Your little pal. She's got me going. She sure is fast on her feet." "A girl's got to be, to stay in the same ring with you. And I don't mean wedding ring." "That's when I got my first surprise. I do," he said, "I'm going to marry your Juddy." "Kid stuff!" I said. "Kid, nothing. Mom, I'm 25 years old." He gave me a quick sketch of his life. Since high school days he'd been really a pro under cover. It wasn't false colors, because in those coast schools where he played, that sort of thing was perfectly kosher. Baseball, basketball, hockey; he was a dab at all of them, but football was his best bet.

Nation's Girls to Serve Also

Girl Scouts Have War Program All Set Out

By MARGUERITE YOUNG
NEA Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK—War finds about half a million "women of tomorrow"—uninformed 14-to-18-year-old Girl Scouts—right in there, leading by example.

From Honolulu to Bangor, Maine, they swung into action as the attack came, and they're on emergency duty now. In their ready-made, now Senior Service Scouts program there is about 3,000,000 high school misses as want to fall in line. There's work for grown women too, training and supervising them.

You get a good idea of what goes on by looking at war messages on top of Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse's desk, high above the city's midtown rear. Mrs. Rittenhouse is national director of the organization.

"Council members, leaders, Scouts all serving in emergency," reads a telegram to headquarters here. "No Scout casualties known. All of us OK."

That's Honolulu reporting its 1750 Island of Oahu members sound and active ten days after Pearl Harbor. San Francisco gives more details. There's a letter from the Scout Council's director, relating:

Girls Scouts Serve As Air Raid Wardens
"Many are already assigned as air raid wardens and watchers. A great many are on Red Cross and other civilian defense jobs. We hope to have centers in the districts this week for relief work. Great impacts have been given to the SSS program. You see we really are geared."

The Girl Scouts are "geared," in fact, they're inaction in hundreds of communities. They're bicycle couriers, speeding air-raid-drill messages, blanket-brigadiers in charge of practice-raid covering for the "injured," emergency guardians of "evacuated" children in community defense demonstrations, hospital aides, collectors of scrap for fighting equipment and of books for soldiers and sailors' libraries, substitute telephone operators... they're even taking up forest conservation where CCC boys leave off to go into the Army.

As War was declared, headquarters here wired President Roosevelt renewal of a pledge that was accepted by him last spring—a pledge to re-double Scout training and put all members and facilities at the country's service. Their setup includes 138,000 trained volunteer and professional leaders, adults.

Months ago, local councils all over the country started a big war-on-waste campaign, and national leaders set up Senior Service Scouts program. Older girls of 14 to 18 were nothing new in the organization, but now their skills will be trained like guns directly on defense needs. Their program was overhauled and expanded in precise relationship to both pro-

Defense and morale-building Civilian Defense considerations.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt approved the "well-planned" program. Civilian Defense Director Fiorello H. La Guardia seconded her.

During the first week of war, scout and defense leaders consulted together locally and nationally, called for just more of the things that were under way. Things like these, already done:

Scouts Already Practice Useful Arts
Washington, D. C. Scouts saved a nearby Virginia forest—a valuable white growth—when a CCC company left it to go into training. Blister rust struck the trees. The Scouts responded to the forester's call for help. They went by truck and pulled up by hands hundreds of blighted currant and goose-berry bushes—a vital defense job," according to the forester's official report.

In New York: Blind Scouts are trained and practiced to aid air raid wardens in evacuating younger blind schoolmates.

In Los Angeles: mapped hundreds of blocks of the town, each group covering an area twenty blocks in each direction from their own block, marking places for special protection and for air raid shelters.

In Fort Wayne, Indiana: supplied personnel to local Civilian Defense Council, also girl aides to execute administration. And so the story could go on—young girls swinging into action in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Riverside, Calif.; Portsmouth, N. H.; Butte, Mont.; Lynn Mass., and every place there is a troop.

San Francisco relates an incident that typifies the Scouts' spirit. This potential target city's leadership had scheduled a rehearsal for Scouts wishing to take part in traditional Christmas caroling. The day before that San Franciscans had their first raid warning and blackout.

"We wondered whether any girls would even remember the rehearsal,"

"Don't be a sucker," I told her. "That boxwood alone is good for two thousand smackers, if the right purchaser sees it. You need a guardian."

"You expect so," she said. She let her head go down. "What am I going to do?" she said, low and kind of scared.

"Hook up with Mom and make some money," I said. "The tourist camp?" she said. "Tambay Tourist Camp, Grade A Lodgings for Grade A Folks. Judson & Baumer, Proprietors."

I got out pad and pencil and gave her a high pressure sales-talk. For five hundred and fifty dollars per unit we could put up a row of log-and-wattle cabins with hillbilly labor, which is cheap and quick and good, because the hillies build their own houses that way. That figure would include plumbing and furnishing. Add 10 per cent for error and make it six hundred. To pipe water down from Tambay Springs would spoil a thousand more, and there'd be another grand, at least, in an electric light outfit and a septic tank.

"How many cabins would we have?" Juddy said. That "we" sounded good to me. "Twelve to start with. That's going to push a ten thousand dollar bill right up against the wall and cut its sweet throat."

She looked me between the eyes. "Where do we get the ten thousand?" "That's the point, Juddy. How much have you got?" "A little more than six thousand dollars in the world. Not counting Tambay, and that's mortgaged right up to the moss on the roof."

"You can't live on the income of that," I told her. "No, I can't."

"Then what's left to you but to take a chance? Not that you're taking much. This is a sure winner. Cabins like those rent for two dollars, single; three double. And look what the Feederia will take in. How can we lose?" Juddy's face was mighty serious. "Have you ever worked out any of these schemes that couldn't lose, Mom?"

Well, you had to be honest with Juddy. "Some of them did," I said. "But I am still eating three a day."

Imported India Burlap to U. S. Stopped by War

Farmers Urged to Guard Against Probable Shortage in America

With the outbreak of hostilities in the Far East and India, it is especially important that farmers help conserve burlap to guard against a probable shortage, according to Earl Martindale, chairman of the Hempstead county USDA Defense Board.

"The United States is entirely dependent on imports for its supply of burlap which comes almost exclusively from India," he explained. "About 80 per cent of our total burlap imports go into the manufacture of bags and about three-fourths of the burlap bags manufactured are used to package commodities which farmers buy and sell. In 1938-40 approximately 459 million yards of burlap were used in sales or purchases by farmers."

"Besides these normal uses for burlap, there is an increased demand for it to package foods for the nation's armed forces, certain chemicals and other articles, as well as for the packing of many items shipped abroad under the Lend-Lease act."

An effort is being made to expand the production of coarse cotton fabrics to be used as substitutes for burlap but it is probable that in spite of this, some shortages of fabric packaging materials will develop. Cotton bags would be quite satisfactory substitutes for burlap in most uses, but their increased use is limited by war needs such as tents, uniforms and sandbags, which have placed a heavy burden on cotton fabric manufacturers.

Farmers may help greatly to alleviate any shortage by handling bags more carefully so that they may be reused, by returning used bags to dealers as quickly as possible for reuse and by repairing bags that are only slightly damaged but still suitable for further use.

reported their direct. "Forty-six appeared promptly. Waiting for girls from distant schools, they talked of the crisis. Several remarked how glad they were to be prepared."

"Prepared how?" one asked. "First aid," was the reply in chorus. Then some listed their skills. But one said, "We know how to follow directions," and a round-faced 10-year-old said "We have calmness."

San Francisco relates an incident that typifies the Scouts' spirit. This potential target city's leadership had scheduled a rehearsal for Scouts wishing to take part in traditional Christmas caroling. The day before that San Franciscans had their first raid warning and blackout.

"We wondered whether any girls would even remember the rehearsal,"

STORIES IN STAMPS

Cossack Cavalrymen Aid in Routing Nazis

GLORIFIED in the history and literature of Russia are the fierce, hard-riding Cossack cavalrymen who have been playing such an instrumental part in the disastrous retreat of the Nazi armies.

A group of Cossacks, or Kazaks, are pictured on the stamp above, which was issued in 1933 as part of an ethnographical series depicting the various races which make up the Soviet Union.

In the Kuban region of the Caucasus near the Black Sea, are the greatest concentrations of the remaining Cossacks. In all seasons of the year they wear woollens and each man, whether youth or grandfather, wears on his head a tall sheepskin hat to make him look taller, the fiercer than he is. Known as the world's greatest fighters, they are sturdy, fearless, and have hard-featured massive faces seasoned by wind and rain and often cold. It was the Cossacks who conquered the frozen wastes of Siberia for Russia.

Mrs. Willkie Heads
'Want to Help'
Bureau

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer
Mrs. Wendell Willkie's defense job is heading the information bureau of Young America Wants To Help.
Mrs. Willkie organized the bureau which coordinates the information on all youth organizations and spends two hours a day at its New York headquarters counseling youngsters up to 21 on what they can do for national defense. She also runs a "post office" for British and American youngsters seeking "pen friends."
Mrs. Willkie is a man-sized job in Uncle Sam's defense. With a force of more than 60 men, she operates a mine, a fleet of trucks and a blacksmith shop, and ships from 4,000 to 1,000 tons of iron ore to Colorado each month to be used in defense steel.

ery from those the first Betsy Ross used in her little Philadelphia shop. They cut red and white wool bunting into stripes with electrically driven rotary knives and punch out 50 stars at a clip with a stamping machine. With the aid of special sewing machines they turn out 30 to 40 ensigns an hour for Uncle Sam's two ocean navy.

Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts proposes legislation to give American women a chance to volunteer for non-combatant service side by side with men. Mrs. Rogers urges a uniformed women's Army Auxiliary Corps to assume many tasks now performed by men, such as driving trucks, manning plane detectors and in signal and communications work. Even doing kitchen police.

The corps would be limited to women from 18 to 45 who would receive a private's pay. It would be placed in the War Department but would have its own officers.

All Englishwomen from 20 to 30 are now liable for service by terms of Britain's National Service Act. Single women are subject to compulsory service in the Army, Navy or Air Auxiliary Services, civilian defense or defense industries. Physically fit women up to 51 are liable for national service if and when the government wishes to exercise its powers. Married women entering for children under 14 will not be conscripted.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt is among New York sponsors of a benefit sale to convert lace once worn by queens to aid for bomb-shocked children in England. The sale, conducted by the British War Relief Society, will seek to dispose of 500 pieces of antique lace given by England's leading families. They include a bridal veil valued at $2,000 given by Queen Mary and rare pieces which once belonged to Queen Charlotte and Marie Antoinette.

Drive of Red Cross Continues

Plea Renewed for Donations to Emergency Fund

Red Cross donations to the War Fund are coming in at a steady pace, however, still far from the goal of $4,000 set for Hempstead county.

There are many who expect to contribute who have just neglected it. These people should realize that the Red Cross urgently needs these funds and they should be sent in as soon as possible. Every citizen of Hope certainly can contribute at least one-half of one day's wages to take care of those boys who are fighting their battle.

The total deposited in the bank to date is $1,282.83, additional donations on hand and to be deposited are $4.40. Additional contributions which have not yet been turned into the Chamber of Commerce amount to nearly $1,000.

Among those stores which have reported 100% are:

Among those stores which have reported 100 per cent are: Western Auto Associate Store, $30.31; L. & A. Freight Office, $22.28; Jean's Supply Shop, $3.50; Feeders Supply Co., $5.60; McDowell's Dept. Store, $6.00. This represents one-half day's pay for the employees of these concerns.

Organizations which have made contributions to the War Fund in the last three days are: New Mt. Hope Lodge No. 685 at Washington, Ark., $5.00; Friday Music club, $5.00.

With all the funds now in sight and deposited in the bank, we still are more than $1500 short of the goal. All those who expect to make a contribution are reminded that the time is short, the need is great and the cause most worthy. Remember, everyone is asked to give at least one-half of one day's wages.

Hope Extended to Take Wolves

Bobcats Overcome
15-3 Halftime
Lead to Win

PRESCOTT--Trailing 15 to 3 at the halftime period the Hope Bobcats came back strong in the second half to tie the Prescott Curly Wolves and defeat them 30 to 26 in an extra three-minute period.

The Bobcats did not make a single field goal during the first half, accounting only for three free shots. Coming back strong in the final round McCullough, Simms and Green of Hope started clicking to even the count but the hero honors of the night went to Rogers who was high point with 11 tallies, 5 points of which were made in the overtime period.

For Prescott Willis was outstanding, scoring 7 points. Eley also showed up well for the Wolves.

The strong St. Springs basketball squad, in what is expected to be one of the best games of the season on the local court.

The lineup Friday will be Green and Jordan, forwards, McCullough, center and Simms and Rogers, guards.

Thomas Invited to Sewage Meet

Hope Man to Attend
District Session
at Nashville

Water Superintendent Charles Thomas Thursday received an invitation to attend the district water and sewage meeting for plant superintendents in this region to be held in Nashville on Thursday, January 22, 1942. This conference, which will be under the direction of A. H. Ulrich, Fort Smith waterworks engineer, is one of eight district meetings being held throughout Arkansas under the sponsorship of W. J. Breit, State Supervisor of Trade and Industrial Education in cooperation with State Board of Health, Arkansas Municipal League, and the University Department of Civil Engineering.

One of the chief topics of discussion will concern the operation and protection of water plants and systems under conditions of a war-time emergency. These conferences also afford superintendents an opportunity to discuss methods of plant operation with fellow superintendents.

This is the third consecutive year in which a series of these district schools have been held. Other cities in this area which will send representatives are: Mount Ida, Norman, Glenwood, Wierles, Murfreesboro, Nashville, Mineral Springs, DeQueen, Foreman, Ashdown, Texarkana, Prescott, Gurdon, Arkadelphia, Lewisville, Stamps, Waldo and Magnolia.

Farmers Are Assured High Food Prices

Products to Bring Larger Income Because of War

Hempstead county farmers probably will receive the highest prices and income that they have had since the early 1920's, Oliver L. Adams, county agent, reports. Prices of cotton, cottonseed, livestock, and livestock products rose sharply in 1942, and moderate increases are expected in 1943. In addition he said, prices of fruits and vegetables probably will also increase.

According to Ross Mauney of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, the principal reasons for more favorable prices and income are: (1) Expanded employment and income in defense industries, (2) Lend-Lease program, (3) Congressional action to relate prices to parity principles, (4) Strong speculation and storage demands, and (5) Reduced competition from imported commodities.

After a long period of comparatively low farm prices, farmers welcome the higher prices and income, the Extension economist in land-use planning said. And, even though production costs advance during 1942, Mauney said farmers will have a slightly greater purchasing power than they have had in recent years.

The Food-for-Victory campaign calls for a considerable increase in the production of livestock, livestock products, oats, and soybeans. The University of Arkansas College of Agriculture recommends that the increase be obtained largely through better management and better feeding.

In view of the College's recommendation, Mauney said Farmers should be reluctant to assume the risk involved in borrowing large sums to increase materially their capital goods. Rather, he said, they should safeguard their position against rapidly falling prices, which may follow the close of the war, by using caution in assuming heavy mortgage indebtedness for purchase of land, machinery, equipment, and breeding stock.

No Tires? No Cars? Well, We'll Win in a Walk!

By NEA Service
Scoop! The answer to the question of what the United States will do if it can't get any more autos or tires: It will wear into get along without them.
No more new cars after the end of January; rationing of what there are. No new tires except for those who can prove that they need them for war-worthy purposes.

So what? The United States must get along for a while under the conditions under which much of the world has lived for years, that's all. It has been done, it can be done. There weren't any autos at all in 1900, and we haven't heard that the whole country just shut up shop and went home to bed.

Parlor Courting Again
Here are some of the things we may look forward to in the days to come. Courting is going back to the parlor. Two generations of Americans have necked and pitched woo, respectively, on rubber tires. But from what we read, grandpa did all right on a horsehair settee, and even a horse and buggy is reliably reported to be not without courting conveniences. Or, if habit proves too hard to change, the old bus, its tires in shreds, can still be parked in the garage as well as down the Old Ox Road.

People will be found actually walking down to the neighborhood movie in the evening, and women will be seen carrying home a spool of thread and a pair of new gloves from the department store instead of demanding that a 10-ton truck deliver them.

The bicycle, which has been staging an insistent comeback for several years anyway, may come back with a rush—bicycle tires aren't yet affected by priorities.

Traffic to Divide
The downtown traffic problem, an increasing horror for years, may begin to solve itself, as men come to work on street cars and buses, with one set of tires carrying 20 men instead of one man sitting in lonely grandeur in a 3000-pound equipage sporting five tires. Income to local tax collectors from gas parking meters and sales taxes will fall, making other taxes necessary to take their place. There ought to be fewer traffic accidents as traffic itself declines, also fewer frayed tempers.

The horse will make a partial comeback, necessitating more jobs for street-sweepers. The milkman will clatter up to the door as of yore, without sleep-protecting rubber shoes. Auto salesmen and servicemen are already out of jobs, a situation that will be bad temporarily, but will tend to adjust itself when five million men are inducted into the armed forces and labor shortages begin to appear. Traveling salesmen with nothing to sell won't need those cars anyway, and when they do they will be taking trains.

"Doubling" Up Economy Due
Even suburbanites who have no way to get to their jobs but the old family car will be doubling up and pooling what's left of their cars. If five men all go to town from one neighborhood, each man's car can be made to last five times as long if they take turns with an impromptu "bus service" for all. Some 12,000,000 Americans are believed to live in places which offer no other means of transport to their work than their own cars. Making their present cars last three or four times as long by "clubbing" up seems their only "out."

Within a few years it is estimated that 35 per cent of existing cars will be driven off the road by rubber shortage. There are some 27,000,000 passenger automobiles now in use, and 650,000 new ones built and awaiting sale. The tires now on those cars are the greatest rubber stock pile in the world. It must be made to last until new sources of rubber, natural and synthetic, can be cultivated. Less driving is the only answer.

Horror! We May Have to Walk
Second-hand autos will probably be rationed as well as new cars. It is a fact that the older the car the more essential it usually is to the person driving it. That person usually buys a used car, and means must be found to ration those cars as well as the new ones if they are to be put to the best use.

When the Governor of Colorado is already going about his business on a bicycle built for two (the other one being a husky state policeman) the "Nine-ties" are breathing down our neck, without the gaiter.

We may even have to learn all over again to walk.

Roar of Cities Drown Sirens

Failure of Warnings Shows U. S. Must Take Lessons

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—From New York, Washington and other big American cities comes news that tests of air raid sirens failed. This can be turned into success if the authorities will take lessons from London.

Anyone coming to any big American city after service in blitzed England is apt to jump up and make ready to go to an air raid shelter when, suddenly, down in the street they hear sirens hooting. But the siren is usually only on a fire engine, police car or an ambulance. At all hours of the day and night in the big American cities these screams are heard. So long as this continues, it will be very difficult to devise a system of sirens that to the average American, will mean an air raid alarm.

They Still Use Gongs in London
In London and other big British cities no fire department or police vehicles are equipped with sirens. Neither are ambulances. They still use simple gongs. And the vehicles get through the crowded streets of London just as quickly as do their siren-hooping counterparts in New York.

Lesson No. 1: Ditch the sirens. Go back to gongs.

But even if American authorities dispense with sirens on fire and police vehicles and ambulances, there still remains the every-minute noise of American cities—the swelling chorus of motor horns that would serve to drown out the sound of air raid sirens.

Some years before the present war broke out, authorities in London handed down the ukase that the sounding of motor horns was entirely to cease. Motorists at once set up the kick that this would lead to endless accidents. The authorities stood pat.

The expected increase in accidents did not materialize. Being forbidden to boot their horns more careful in their driving. A vast volume of noise ceased. Great London's immense traffic from then on only made a deep hum. What London did, American cities can do. In fact, the city of Memphis has already done it.

Co. Lesson No. 2: Stop motor horn tooting.

In London there are nearly 500 air raid sirens. Some are run by steam, some by compressed air, some by electricity. As there are no skyscrapers in London and few buildings over ten stories in height, the sound from the sirens is mainly projected horizontally, from points between 50 and 100 feet above the street.

When the Royal Air Force sound detectors find enemy planes coming towards London, the news is flashed to a central authority there. A very thorough system has been set up whereby those in charge of sirens are notified and warnings are given all over town.

British Skipped Tricky Signals
In Britain there was no attempt to have a long sound followed by a short one. The simplest method was adopted—a long wavering sound, up and down, up and down. The henchmen of 500 sirens has been entirely effective. Only a drugged or a drunken sleeper fails to hear the sirens when they let go at night.

So, Lesson No. 3: Following the experience of London, there should be sirens placed all over town so that each does not have to cover a radius of more than a half mile. In the downtown skyscraper districts, sound should be sent both horizontally and vertically, the latter because of the tall buildings where the alarm must be heard.

The long wavering up and down sound should be adopted. In Britain, the All Clear signal is a long steady sound on the siren, with no wavering.
